Russian, OAS Rep. On Convo Docket

Two important officials representing the American and Russian governments will speak at next week's convocations.

Ivan P. Azarov, Second Secretary of the Embassy of the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, will speak at Tuesday's convocation, and Ambassador Delessepps S. Morrison, representative of the United States on the Council of the Organization of American States, will give the address at Thursday's convocation.

Emerging Nations Topic

Azarov, from the USSR embassy in Washington, will talk on the role of the Russian government in the development of the emerging nations.

Pastor Herman Diers of the Convo Committee commented, "This topic ought to be particularly timely in view of the recent publication of President Kennedy's interview with Russian officials. The chief obstacle to peace is the desire of the Communists to dominate and control other countries."

Azarov was born June 24, 1925, in Tula, USSR. After his graduation from high school he attended the State Institute of International Relations in Moscow, where he graduated in 1950. In the same year Azarov entered the Ministry of Foreign Affairs of the USSR.

Azarov Comes In 1958

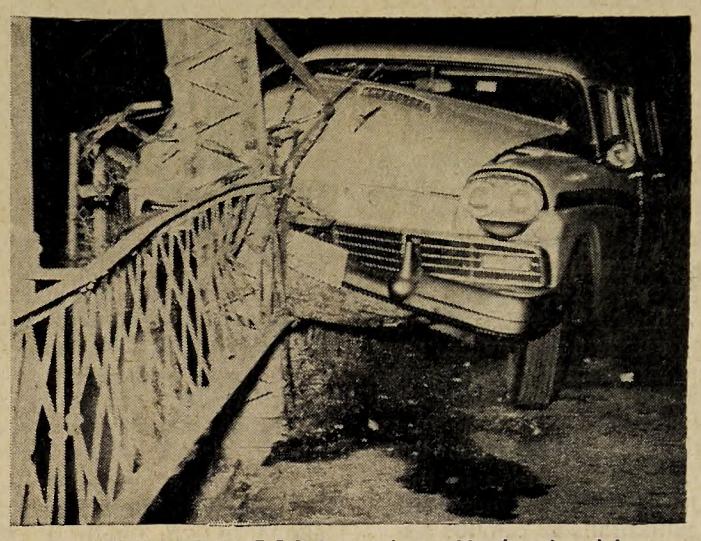
From 1951-1955 he represented his country at the Soviet Embassy in Washington. In 1955 he worked in the USSR Ministry of Foreign Affairs until 1958, when he returned to the Soviet Embassy in Washington.

Following the convo speech, Azarov will be guest of honor at a luncheon of a group of faculty and staff members at the home of Pres. C. H. Becker.

At 3 p.m. the Academic Life Committee will sponsor another appearance of Azarov in the Chapel-auditorium.

Morrison Speaking Thurs.

Representative Morrison's address Thursday will be in connection with the general theme of the emerging nations but more specifically on what the United States has to say about these nations. He will point out what the United States has done in the creative field and what more we could be doing.



MAYBE THE ROAD was icy. Maybe the driver fell asleep. Whatever the cause, a seat belt could have prevented needless injuries or death. See editorial on page 2 for special seat belt prices.

First Orchestra Concert Scheduled For Tomorrow

Wartburg Community Symphony Orchestra will present its first concert tomorrow night at 7:30 in the Chapel-auditorium.

Featured performer will be John Ehrlich, professor from Drake University. Ehrlich is a solo cellist and will play a program similar to that of Pablo Casals, the world's greatest cellist, who played for President Kennedy in a recent White House performance.

He will present Mendelssohn's Symphony No. 5, "Overture to the Merry Wives of Windsor" by Nicholai, "Malaguena" and other songs by Ernesto Lecuona.

Under the direction of Robert E. Lee, the orchestra is composed of 45 members, both Wartburg students and outside musicians from Waverly and the surrounding area.

Admission for students will be 50 cents, according to Lee.

Admissions Dept. Seeks Counselor

Admissions department is now interviewing candidates for the position of admissions counselor, according to Admissions Director Fred Thompson. Mel Frahm, presently holding this position, has been drafted into the armed forces and will leave shortly after the first of the year.

Hertel, Swensen Again In Program

Dr. Elmer W. Hertel, Biology Department, and Dr. A. W. Swensen, Chemistry Department, will again be taking part in the visiting scientist program during the coming week.

Dr. Hertel will be speaking on Tuesday at the Decorah Community Schools, and Dr. Swensen will be at the New Hampton Community School this Thursday.

Under this program, scientists try to improve the teaching of science and mathematics and to stimulate interest in scientific activities. The program is jointly sponsored by the National Science Foundation, the Iowa Academy of Science and the State University of Iowa.

Dr. Hertel visited the Ringsted Independent School during the past week.

Tests Now Required

Beginning with the fall of 1962, any entering student must present either a test score from the ACT testing program, a score from the Scholastic Aptitude test or college entrance examination results, as recently announced by Dr. J. O. Chellevold, dean of faculty.

Russ. Opera Owen Topic

Trevor A. Owen, English Department, will speak at an English lecture next Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. in the Chapel-auditorium. Lecture topic will be "Russian Opera."

Year's theme for the lecture series is Russian culture, this lecture being the third in the series.

Coffee and cookies will be served by the English majors following the lecture, according to Don Ehlers, chairman.

Teacher Seminar Here December 11

A teacher education seminar will be held here Monday, Dec. 11, in Luther Hall. Participants will be members of the Northeast College Committee on Teacher Education.

On the agenda for the afternoon are discussions concerning programs for preparing elementary teachers and recommendations for certification of teachers in Iowa, according to Dr. Herbert Max, head of the Education Department.

Newsletter Senate Topic

Social activities and a monthly newsletter were the chief concern of the Student Senate at its weekly meeting last Monday night.

The monthly newsletter, which will come out for the first time this month was approved by the senate. The newsletter will contain information on current Senate happenings and will go to the entire student body.

On the activities side a Snow Weekend was brought up by senior Mary Markle of the Social Activities Committee. The event would be held in late February or early March. Nothing definite was decided, but the Senate endorsed the idea unanimously and will look into the matter further.

Also considered was the annual carnival in connection with the student body project. The Senate set up a research committee to see whether a carnival will be held this year.

The Senate accepted the final Pops Concert report from junior Fred Dierks. Net profit on the Stan Kenton concert six weeks ago was $76.01, leaving the Pops Concert balance at $1,098.05.

Gail Bethke was approved as a member of the Social Activities Committee, and Joyce Brenke was approved as the Senate representative on the Women's Judicial Council.

The Senate also accepted a dinner invitation from Pres. C. H. Becker for tomorrow night.

SOWA, GROSS GIVE SPEECHES

Ghana, Spending Are Topics

Two well-qualified speakers on foreign affairs gave Wartburg students more background information on the world scene in speeches during the past two weeks.

Republican Congressman H. R. Gross spoke on many facets of U. S. spending in a speech before Thanksgiving vacation. Convo speaker T. O. Sowa of the Ghana embassy in Washington presented details about his country in a film and several addresses Tuesday.

Ambassador Fogged Out

A third speaker, Dr. Joseph Simonson, former ambassador to Ethiopia, who was to have spoken at Thursday's convo, was unable to fly down from Minneapolis because of fog cover at the Waterloo airport. He will probably appear next spring, according to Pastor Herman Diers of the Convo Committee.

Sowa appeared as part of a convo series on emergent nations while Gross spoke at a special Young Republicans' meeting.

"My president is always on the side of the West," stated Sowa Tuesday afternoon when asked about the appearance of Communist leanings of Ghana's President Nkrumah.

Ghana Is Neutral

Sowa explained his country's positive neutralism as being an attitude of friendliness to all, enmity to none.

"Communism is not in Ghana. We are misinterpreted," said Sowa. "We are a neutral country. We never take a stand with Russia."

When asked about the Volta Dam project, Sowa said, "We are hopeful that we will receive a loan from the U. S."

He pointed out that Ghana had never gotten a U. S. grant before.

"Why should Ghana be branded as Communist when America still gives aid to countries behind the Iron Curtain?" asked Sowa.

Sowa Explains Ghana

In addition to explaining Ghana's position in world affairs, Sowa also gave many details about the conditions of internal Ghana and explained Ghana's cocoa-based industry and economic situation.

Congressman Gross, representing the Third District which includes this area, told students, "I am alarmed at the spending of our Congress."

As an example he cited the $106 billion national budget next year and the "backdoor" spending of $19 billion over a five-year period as part of our foreign aid program.

Economics Worse Than War

Gross said that he feared the U. S. economic situation more than a war. The best way to stop Communism, according to Gross, is to balance the budget and lower our national debt of $295 billion.

He said that Khrushchev would keep the heat on and run us into bankruptcy. Russia doesn't want war because Red China would then move into power.

Gross Blasts PC Again

Gross, well-known for his opposition to the Peace Corps, said that the Corps was unnecessary because government technicians, churches and other organizations were doing all that could be expected. He said that Peace Corpsmen were too young and inexperienced to do an effective job.

As to foreign aid and the U. N., Gross said that he did not approve of so much spending for either because they weren't worth it. He cited NATO and SEATO as bypasses anyway, which do more good, but he did not favor the United States' joining the European Common Market because "we would get shortchanged."

Delessepps Morrison

He was elected to the state legislature in 1940. Upon his return from military service he became Reform candidate for mayor of New Orleans and was elected to the first of his four terms as mayor.

His leadership in the effort to promote trade with Latin America brought him personal familiarity with the problems of the hemisphere and earned him many of the decorations which he has received from over 15 foreign governments.

Morrison was serving in this capacity as mayor when he was given the title of Ambassador by the Kennedy administration in July 1961.

FROM THE EDITOR'S CHAIR

College Stresses Grades Too Much?

Wartburg is too tough.

Sure, it's nice to have increasingly higher standards of education, but what kind of a graduate do we want? Do we want someone who knows everything just by the book, or do we want someone who is well-rounded because his education came from more than books?

Wartburg is getting tougher academically, no doubt about that. It seems to be somewhat of a trend throughout colleges today because of the increasing number of students who want to get in. The almighty high grade looms before the student as something he must get because that's what colleges are emphasizing.

What is important in college today? Are college years to be simply a grind of constant studying and preparing for the future? Is education to come only from books and classes? Is Wartburg becoming so one-track-minded that education can come only from study?

Look at Wartburg. It's not hard to see that the emphasis is on studying. Many extracurricular activities have suffered. Take the publications, for example. They're suffering not because there aren't any talented students but because these students feel they don't have time to go out for any extracurricular activities that take much time.

Publications aren't by any means alone in the category of activities being hurt because of increased academic pressure. Many organizations on campus are not coming up to their possible potential because no one has time to really build them up.

Why aren't students more willing to take on responsible jobs in campus activities? Wartburg is much larger now than it was a few years ago, but still the size of many organizations stays about the same.

Students of today aren't less responsible than those of several years ago, but they've had the idea ground into them that grades are most important. Students feel they cannot take on any more than classes and possibly a half-way membership in a few organizations.

Last year an organization that should be vitally important to all students, World Affairs Forum, disappeared because of no interest. Fortunately, the organization has returned to active status this year.

Why were there only two candidates for student body president last year? It wasn't that there weren't other qualified seniors, but many were apprehensive of getting too big a job because they didn't feel they could handle classes and such an important position.

Athletics has also felt the pinch, as some good athletes have dropped some sports to concentrate more on the books. And these are by no means inferior students.

Some are passing up many opportunities to hear good speakers or go to cultural performances right here on campus because they've got to study for a heavy class schedule the next day.

Some are extremely involved in campus activities. But most students just want to belong as long as it doesn't take more than a night or two a month, and that situation leaves only a few to do most of the work. Some leaders are being hurt academically because few individuals, no matter how talented, can do real justice to several organizations and get top grades, too.

What is important then? Definitely, classes are most important because that is what a college is based on, but someone seems to have forgotten that extracurricular activities are also an important part of education. The idea that we've got to concentrate wholly on books and classes for our learning is wrong.

What does it mean if a student aces everything because he knows the book backwards and forwards but can't apply what he knows to practical situations? Is the aim of the teacher to see if he can flunk a third of the class because a college wants only the top academic students?

Where do the scholarships usually go? Most go to the students who rank in the top percentile of their high school class as far as grades go. In most cases this is a good indication of many talents, but what happens to the well-rounded person who is a good, but not excellent, student who is interested in things besides book knowledge?

Wartburg, give your students a chance to think out their own ideas instead of cramming classwork down their throats. Don't force the ideas of a book or professor on students simply because they must know them for a test.

Wartburg, remember that college should be a memorable period of life itself, not just a grind to prepare for life. Every part of life should be an important experience and not just a phase before you get into the meat of real life.

So, Wartburg, you can go ahead and get tougher and tougher if you want to. You can watch vital extracurricular activities dwindle and see your graduates become wise only in the ways of the books.

But while you're doing this, remember, what was college meant to be, anyway?

Iowan Apologizes To Minnesota U.

By Bob Johannsen

As you may have noticed from the title, I wish to write an apology. This is an apology to the University of Minnesota from the state of Iowa, or at least from that part of it that will agree with me.

First, I wish to apologize for the many critical remarks that Iowa fans have hurled at the Gophers following the black day, Jan. 1, 1961. I hope that these unfortunate remarks will not be held against us.

• • • •

These remarks obviously displayed our backwardness. I'm afraid that we may be living in the past, those good old days when the Big Ten's Rose Bowl representative was often a truly national power, the days when our conference selection merited a trip to Pasadena but not via second-class postage.

Ironically, those teams of old went so far as to win games, football games, after they got out there. Enough of this. I fear that I'm dwelling too much on the past.

I remember, and penitently so, the groundless criticism that I launched against the U. of M. last autumn when it accepted a bowl bid after voting "No" at the conference meeting. I remember hearing others remark at that time, "Oh, those faculty doctors and their hypocritic oath."

• • • •

At that time I found an inconsistency in this act. The venerable (Or is it vulnerable?) Golden Gophers have proven me wrong again, if I can trust the newscasts. It appears that the faculty board is ready once again to accept a bid after earlier negative views concerning the bowl setup. There is no getting around that, pardner. That's consistency.

Well, our best wishes go with you in your quest for redemption. It could be a fine classic again this year, the Golden Gophers against UCLA, a team (?) who from all reports has been a serious contender in the Los Angeles high school circuits all year long.

My final words of apology are extended to Murray Warmath. I insist, however, that past criticism has not been directed at Mr. Warmath's work but rather toward the fans who have placed him on such a lofty pedestal.

• • • •

Running Murray for governor is all right; nearly anyone can do it — right, Norman? I'm afraid the point of distress was sharpest when the Minnesota fans exalted their coach beyond earthly considerations. At that time there were reports that a figure resembling Warmath had been sighted hanging around downtown Minneapolis about five feet off the ground.

I hope this apology has not stung the hearts of my fellow Iowans. We must realize that there are times when we must praise even our rivals, if they deserve it.

Next week, Ohio State, a school with character.

Care To Live?

You could be one of 5,000.

This is the number of traffic deaths per year that could be prevented if all cars had seat belts, according to the National Safety Council. With the recent emphasis on seat belts and with a long trip coming up for Christmas vacation, perhaps you've been considering installing seat belts.

Now is the time. Don't delay. Through cooperation with Larry's Shell Station, 200 W. Bremer, the Trumpet is giving all college students a chance to get seat belts at a 10 per cent discount for one week only.

The next week could be a big one in your life. If you're the owner of one of the nearly 195 cars on campus, you have an opportunity to help cut the tragic traffic toll.

If you've been thinking about seat belts, anyway, this is the time to get them while you are still able and you can get them cheaper. All it takes is a trip to Larry's Shell. If you haven't considered seat belts, think about it.

Remember, you could be one of those 5,000 who could be saved.

Knights Impress, Win First

By Paul Mardorf

The 1961-62 edition of the Knights' basketball team was unveiled last night in a game which showed much promise for things to come.

The Knights with well-balanced scoring gave new head Coach Fred Jaspers his debut victory over Texas Lutheran College 76-71.

Balance Pays Off

It was truly a team victory. Balanced scoring, which is the desire of every coach, was certainly evident. Six Knights ended the game scoring in double figures.

Senior forward Bob Mueller led the attack with 15 points, followed by junior Dave Brunscheen with 14 points. Seniors Jim Borcherding and Dar Oehlerich followed with 13 and 12 points, respectively. Scoring 10 points each were sophomores Ray Bye and Al Buenning.

Former Knight Leads

For the Bulldogs of Texas Lutheran Jim Schulz and former Knight Ken Joens led the scoring with 17 points apiece.

As is indicated by the scoring, there was no one star for the Knights. Borcherding and Brunscheen can be singled out for excellent performances. Bye, although not a starter, turned in a good job with his steady floor play.

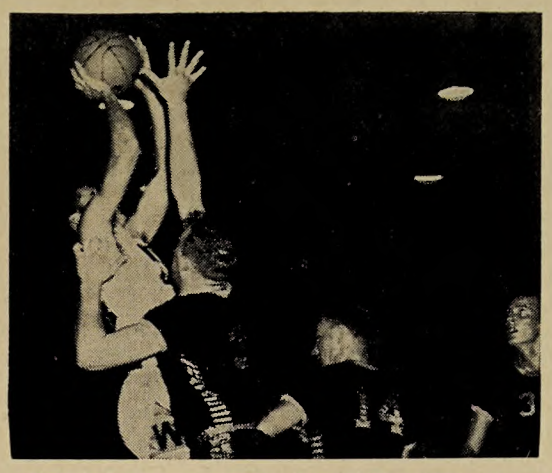
Frosh Win By 7 Over Sem Team

Youth defeated experience in last night's preliminary game as the frosh downed Wartburg Seminary, 62-55.

Little Bob Nielsen canned 12 field goals, most from behind the free throw line, to lead the Squires' scoring. Jerry Hemenway, also a guard, hit 15. For tbe Saints John Adix, former Wartburg star, scored 16.



CENTER DAVE BRUNSCHEEN goes high to get this shot basket-bound as three Texas Lutheran cagers move in. Wartburg surprised, 76-71.

PICKING UP SPLINTERS

Parsons Loses In Bowl, Is Top Basketball Choice

By Paul Baumgarten

The Iowa Conference football season ended on a dismal note last weekend as Parsons was defeated by Northeast Missouri 22-8. The Kelly Greens seem to have contributed immensely to their own defeat by giving up the ball six times on pass interceptions, once on a fumble and once on a blocked kick.

Baumgarten

The All-conference picks have also recently been made. Surprise and a bit of disappointment were registered on this end because of the omission of Wartburg tackle, Dennis Krominga. He certainly seemed to be one of the best at that position.

Another surprise as far as I was concerned was the relegation of Nat Craddock, the fine Parsons halfback to the role of utility back in the picks. Despite the fact that he was injured part of the season and played under a handicap, he appeared to be one of the two best backs in the conference, along with Luther's Gerry Anderson.

The conference basketball picture at this point has Parsons again set to play the dominant role. Last year's champs, the Kelly Greens, did not lose enough to hurt them and should again finish on top.

BV, Upper Iowa and Luther should all fight it out for positions in the first division. BV and Upper Iowa both possessed good, young teams last year and will probably be tough. The Norsemen, despite heavy losses, should fight their way near the top before their final game of the year against the Knights at Decorah.

Simpson, Central and Dubuque should be in the loser part of the standings. Simpson will drop because of the loss of All-conference forward, Bob Tidgren, who was three-quarters of its team.

Central hasn't been any good since Carle left, and I see no reason to expect improvement. Dubuque will again probably score a lot of points. It, however, lacks one thing which every good team has — the ability to win games.

Iowa Wesleyan will probably finish near or at the bottom of the heap. It should be interesting to see whether or not it wins a game this year. If it does, that will be one more than last year.

The Knights must overcome heavy personnel losses which have occurred since last year. A great part of their success will depend on the performance of Fred Jaspers, new head mentor. The first thing he must come up with is several consistent scorers into the double figures.

One last note of interest: If the frosh continue to improve on the promise they showed in the intrasquad game Monday, they could prove a potent group in a few years.

Sowers Is Picked As IC Linebacker

By John Stumme

For the second straight season senior Don Sowers won a berth on the Iowa Conference All-conference first defense unit. Sowers was the only Knight to be named to the 24-member team.

The 180-pounder was placed on the squad as a linebacker. Sowers was selected beeause of his consistent and sometimes "b o w-does-he-do-it" defensive play.

At times it seemed that he had an innate ability, a sixtb sense, to diagnose tbe play before it happened, according to teammates. He liked contact and didn't allow his relatively small size to keep him from making his share of tackles.

Sowers Also Blocks

As the season progressed and Wartburg's offense couldn't get off its feet, Sowers took on a new responsibility as a blocking back. He also played some offensive guard.

Besides Sowers, five others repeated on the All-conference squad from last year. Dick Van Gorp, Central guard, was selected for the third time. End Bob Martin, Parsons; halfback Gerry Anderson, Lutber; fullback Scott Berry, Dubuque; and halfback Mike Eischeid, Upper Iowa, also received recognition for the second year in a row.

Parsons Places Seven

Wartburg and last-place Simpson were the only teams to place just a single player on the squad. Champion Parsons headed tbe list of All-conference selections, landing seven on tbe team.

The team was chosen by tbe conference coaches. A second team was not named.

Offensive Unit

Ends: Sherman Wolleson, Buena Vista; Bob Martin, Parsons
Tackles: Bruce Hereman, Central; LeRoy Bufton, Dubuque
Guards: Robert Slykhuis, Central; John Murphy, Parsons
Center: John Jansson, Luther
Quarterback: Gary Gardner, Parsons
Halfbacks: Fran Nieman, Buena Vista; Gerald Anderson, Luther
Fullback: Scott Berry, Dubuque
Utility lineman: Jerry Wiebusch, Luther
Utility back: Nat Craddock, Parsons

Defensive Unit

Ends: Barry Yount, Simpson; Joe Patava, Parsons
Tackles: Don Grove, Upper Iowa; Jerry Kamp, Parsons
Guard: Dick Van Gorp, Central
Linebackers: Dave Grove, Luther; Don Sowers, Wartburg; Fred Shettler, Iowa Wesleyan
Halfbacks: Mike Eischeid, Upper Iowa; Al Firestein, Iowa Wesleyan; John Bahkus, Parsons
Utility linebacker: John Sikkink, Central
Utility back: Gary Sliefert, Buena Vista

19 Wrestlers Begin Action

Four lettermen and 15 hopefuls compose the 1961-62 version of the Wartburg wrestlers.

Coach Norm Johansen will have to pick his eight-member squad from nine freshmen, six sophomores, three juniors and one senior.

Those back who already have their "W" are juniors Bill Smith, 130, Jim Mueller, 137, and sophomores Jim Koepke, 130, and Duane Huth, heavyweight.

Coach Johansen said that he is planning to take some of bis more experienced wrestlers to tbc AAU meet next Saturday at State College of Iowa, Cedar Falls.

First dual meet of the season will be against Augustana Dec. 16.

Johansen said that who would wrestle wbat weight had not yet been determined.

Volleyball Teams Play Full Slate

A full schedule of games was played last Tuesday in the intramural volleyball leagues.

Vollmer House downed the Off-campus team in two straigbt, and Clinton Basement was handed two straight losses by the Married Men. In intra-dorm competition Grossmann III swept both games from Grossmann II, to complete American League action.

In tbe National League North Hall dumped Clinton II in two straigbt. Clinton III had to play three games to win two from Clinton I, as did Cotta in defeating the Faculty team.

Music Provides Harmony For Next Week's Events

By Louise Loots

The week begins with "The Sound of Music" as the Wartburg Community Symphony Orchestra gives its first concert of the season tomorrow night.

Featuring soloist John Ehrlich of Drake University, the orchestra will begin tuning up shortly before 7:30, when the concert begins. So, music-lovers, the Chapel-auditorium is the place for you to be tomorrow night.

□ □ □ □

On this Wednesday night, as on every Wednesday night, there will be an opportunity for you to spread a note of cheer to the cheerless. Anyone and everyone is urged to find out how much fun it is to visit with shut-ins by meeting at the south entrance of the Student Union at 5:30 if he would like to go out to the Bartles' Home, or at 6:30 if the County Home is his destination.

□ □ □ □

Wednesday night appears to be a busy one, for there are several meetings scheduled. A continuation of the discussion of "Basic Lutheran Teachings," led by Pastor Diers, will be held in Room 202, Luther Hall, from 7 to 8.

□ □ □ □

The Aviation Club meeting will also get off to a flying start at 7 p.m. in the audio-visual room of the Library. This doesn't seem like a good place for taking off, but you know what they say about life, "If you want to get to the top you have to start at the bottom of the ladder." O.K., Jacob, here we come!

□ □ □ □

Our "Music for a Wednesday Evening" will be of a classical nature. In a lecture sponsored by the English Department, Trevor Owen will speak on "Russian Opera."

Beginning at 7:30, the lecture will be given in the Chapel-auditorium with refreshments afterwards in Room 103, Luther Hall.

□ □ □ □

And then there's "Music to Dream and Dance By." On Friday evening the annual Pi Sigma Christmas Ball will be held, giving you something to dream about all during Christmas vacation.

Under the beautiful theme of "Holiday in the Alps," the soft sounds of the band will echo through Knights Gymnasium from 8 to 11:30.

On this lovely note our week will draw to a close.

Tryouts Scheduled Soon

Tryouts for the next major production of the Wartburg Players, "Antigone," will be held in the Little Theater Dec. 11 and 12 from 7 to 10 p.m.

At that time an attempt will also be made to choose the cast for a play to be presented during a Spiritual Emphasis Week convocation Feb. 19.

Students that are interested in trying out for either of the plays may obtain further information and play books at the speech office, according to John Gill, drama director.

Thompson To Speak

Fred Thompson, director of admissions, will speak at Markesan, Wis., next Wednesday for the College Day program at Markesan High School.

FROM THE STUDENT BODY PRESIDENT

Snook Seeking All Minutes

By Al Snook

Recently I wrote an article aimed at improving communication between the campus organizations and student government, and at first I thought that it had achieved its purpose.

For about two weeks after the article was written, my desk was flooded with minutes from various campus organizations. Then as the weeks passed, there were fewer and fewer minutes coming in.

Only Eight Cooperate

Last week I took an actual count of the minutes that were in the files from this year. I found that only eight out of the more than 40 organizations on our campus had their minutes in for the three months that have passed.

Snook

Only 20 out of these 40 organizations had any minutes in the student body president's office at all. I was very disappointed with these findings because I feel that it is part of the secretary's responsibility to have the minutes in the college president's office, dean of students' office and the student body president's office as soon as possible after each meeting.

Presidents Organize

A few other colleges have an advisory senate composed of the presidents of the campus organizations to achieve their ends, but they are much larger than Wartburg and need such an organization. We can achieve the same results if the secretaries will make it a point to have their minutes in the appropriate offices after each meeting.

Beginning in December, the Senate is going to post the agenda and minutes of Senate and student body meetings in the dorms and in Luther Hall.

Also, we are going to publish a monthly newsletter to the students in an effort to inform each student about what is going to be done and what is now being done in Senate.
